Horrible Murders in South Carolina -Two Men Assassinated by Ku-

On yesterday afternoon a gentleman from Barnwell county, South Carolina, arrived in this city, bringing intelligence of two horrible murders which had been committed in that county during the night previous. From this gentleman's story it appears that on last Monday night, about half past seven o'clock, two colored desperadoes, named Lewis McCreery, and Juba Johnson, and armed to the teeth, visited the house of a negro man living near Windsor, a station on the South Carolina Railroad, in Barnwell county, and distant about twenty five miles from this city. Stopping a short distance from the cabin they called the inmate by name and asked him to come out as they wished to see him on business. Either from fear that foul play was intended, or from ha-bitual caution, the negro when he came from his house brought his gun along with him. As soon as he came to where Mc-Creery and Johnson were standing they engaged him in conversation, and one of them asked permission to examine the fire-arm. Without waiting for a reply, he snatched the gun away, and the two assassins commenced firing upon the victim with their revolvers. He must have been mortally wounded or killed by the first two or three shots, but the ruffians continued firing until no less than fourteen shots had pierced his body. Leaving the body of the murdered man where it fell, the colored Thugs resumed their march, and about ten o'clock at night they arrived near the house of a white man living a few miles from the house of the negro whom they had killed. Here their murderous tactics were repeated, but with less success than in the first instance. Hailing as before, they called the man out and asked him to give them a chew of tobacco. Almost immediately they fired upon him, but fortunateh their aim was defective, and the man was only wounded, not killed. He managed to retreat into his house, and, barricading it, armed himself and set the ruffians at defiance. Deeming it unwise to continue the attack, the Thugs retreated | debtedness, and now authorizes the publiand sought bloodshed in another quarter. At about half-past eleven or twelve g'clock, the assussins halted in front of the cabin of another negro some miles distant, and woke him up and called him | we have never raised any such issue. We out of his house. As soon as he came fairly into view they fired upon and killed | introducing such new matter, as the lawhim, shooting him in several places. At vers say, into the case. What we say is this house the rufflaus seemed to have that Crant subscribed one thousand dolbecome surfeited with blood, and deter- lars to the Rawlin's fund got up mused to suspend their murderous opera- here in New York by Gen. tions. They retreated in the direction of Butterfield, and that we paid that subthe Edisto river, and nothing more, we believe, has been seen of them. in the meantime, information of the first murder was circulated among the people of the settlement in which it had been committed, and a strong and well armed party of white men and negroes organized and started in pursuit of the Ku-Klux, thugs or assassina. Guided by torch-lights, they succeeded in tracking the physics from the house where the nogro was killed, until they came to the sidence of the white man whom they had wounded. They found the white man | can eagle is our bird, and Grant can't get still entreoched in his house with his arms by his side, ready for use, if another atapon him should be threatened. When he saw the posse approaching his house, he thought his former assailants had returned, and came near firing upon one of the party-a Mr. Burnettcould be convinced he was mistaken. From this place the murderers were traced to the house of the second negro who had been killed, and from there the trail was f llowed until the Edisto river was reached. At this point it was discovered that the assassins had gone up the river bis and Augusta railroad. While the main body of the pursuers followed up the trail through the country, one of their number-Mr. John A. Burnett-got on the cars at the nearest station and came to this city, that he might post our police and have the negroes arrested if they came to Augusta by railroad. Lewis McCreery is described as a large, this place they went to Mr. Johnheavy built and very black negro; Juba inson is rather short and stout. The negroes killed are said to have been ulet and harmless, and no cause for their eath can be assigned, unless it was the result of a private feud between themselves and their murderers.-Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and Sentinel, Sep. 21.

CHIEF JUSTICE CHASE. Universal Suffrage and Amnesty-

Why Jeff. Davis' Trial has been

The following is an extract from a letter of Chief Justice Chase to Hon. T. W. Conway, which has just been made

I have never advocated universal suffrage and immediate amnesty to all. I have said that universal suffrage would reconcile comprehensive lenity with tranquillity and prosperity. I would have no more disfranchisement after the complete establishment of universal suffrage than is absolutely necessary to secure the new order of things and the new State constitutions against overthrow. Those lately in rebellion have no more right to destroy the country by ballots than by bullets. As to the trial of Jefferson Davis, the scription to the Rawlins' fund, and also asserting that he had given twenty-five hundred dollars to that object, Mr. Fisk

"What I have to say to that," replied Col.

ment at all. The fact that Gen. Grant paid a twenty-five hundred dollar subscription-if it be a fact-has nothing to do with his not paying a one thousand dollar subscription. We don't know any thing about that twenty-five hundred dollar matter, but we do know all about the one thousand dollar affair. Mr. Grant's relations with Gen. Rawlins have nothing to do with the question either, and 1 am not going to allow him to hide from pubic disgust in this matter by invoking the memory of that distinguished and beloved man. What I want Mr. Grant to answer is this: Did he or did he not subscribe one thousand dollars to the Rawlins fund, got up by Gen. Butterfield in this city !

And then I want to ask him to answer this question: Did he pay that one thousand dollars subscription, or was it not paid by us, with Mr. Gould's check?

That is the point involved. That's the point at issue. Whether Rawlins died ndebted to Grant, and if so, whether Grant destroyed the evidence of that in cation of that performance to wound the feelings of his friend's widow and half leave Grant to abide the consequences of scription for him, with Gould's check, a stated in the Sun yesterday. Now let Grant or his authorized agent deny that if he will, and then we will show our proofs.

We are not going to be led astray from that issue by any special pleading, or by the introduction of irrelevant matter. We plant ourselves on that one point, as to this business. We have enough other sharp sticks for Grant whenever we choose to probe him with them. But one thing at a time is our motto. That's the
